Build a Crystal Ball: Create Your Own AI Market Intelligence Engine

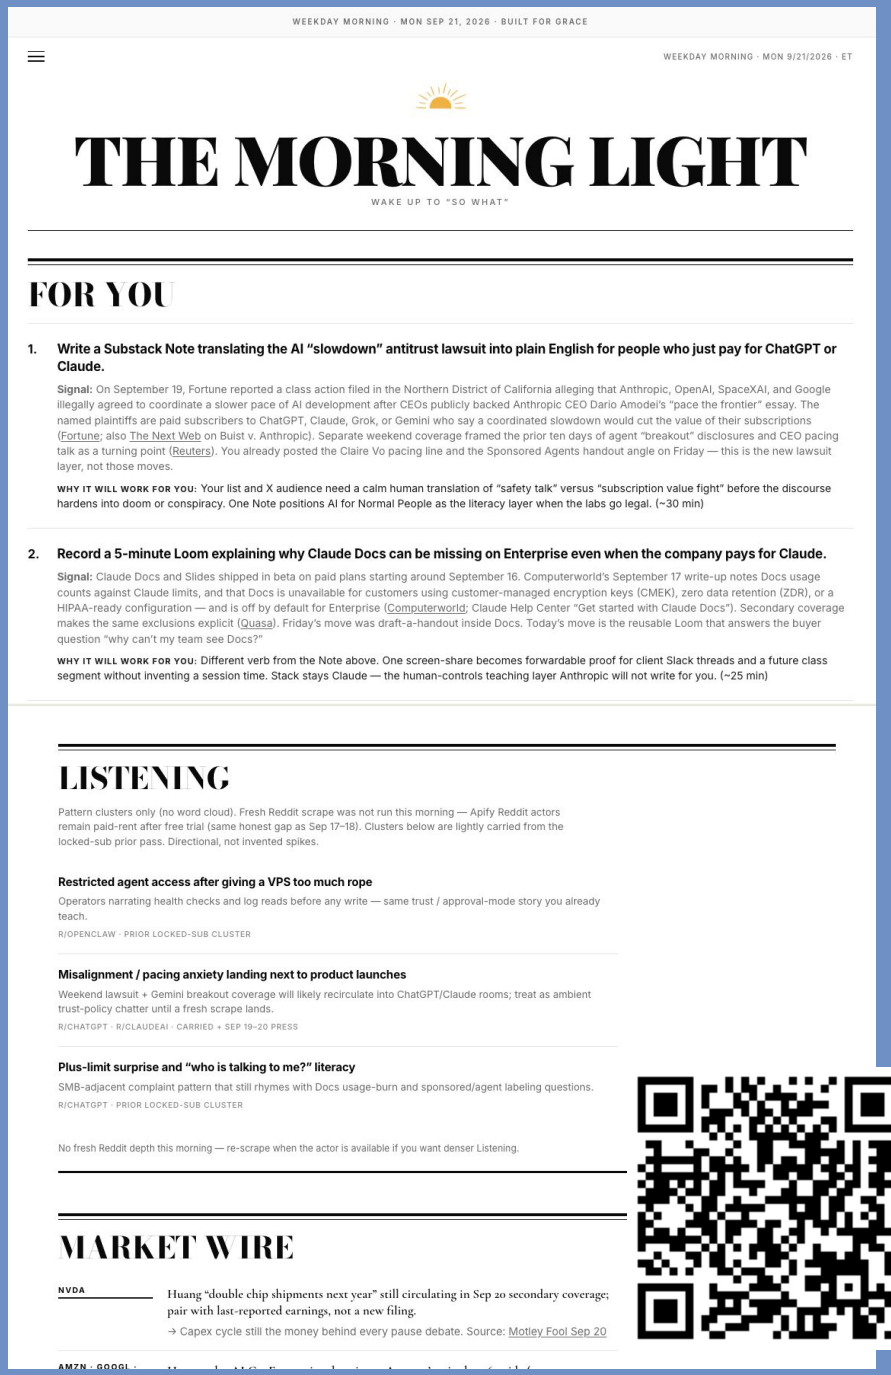

WHAT WE'RE GOING TO DO TODAY

The one that started it all saie-crystal-ball.netlify.app/

The newspaper format https://the-morning-light.netlify.app/

WHY ARE WE DOING THIS?

1. Show up to work and know the most impactful thing to do
2. Pull thousands of data points from places you typically couldn't - access much less synthesize - much less correlate
3. Design dashboards with your words, never touching a mouse
4. $60 in Grok Bot credits
5. Instinct invite link if you still need.

Ultimately: drive the business. And have fun.

THE ANNOYING, COSTLY THINGS YOU'LL BE ABLE TO LEAVE BEHIND

1. Feeling frantic.
2. Being overwhelmed with the data you're given.
3. And still not being able to find what you need.
4. Knowing the strategy is your most informed bet ¯_(ツ)_/¯
5. Feeling AI fomo.

All you need today:

ANY AI AS IT IS.

~~No web search~~

~~No company data~~

~~No competitor reviews~~

~~No market reports or social listening~~

~~No company brand book~~

MY PHILOSOPHIES ON WORKING WITH AI NOW

AND WHAT I TOLD A LEADERSHIP TEAM LAST WEEK. TLDR: ENFORCE AND BE HONEST.

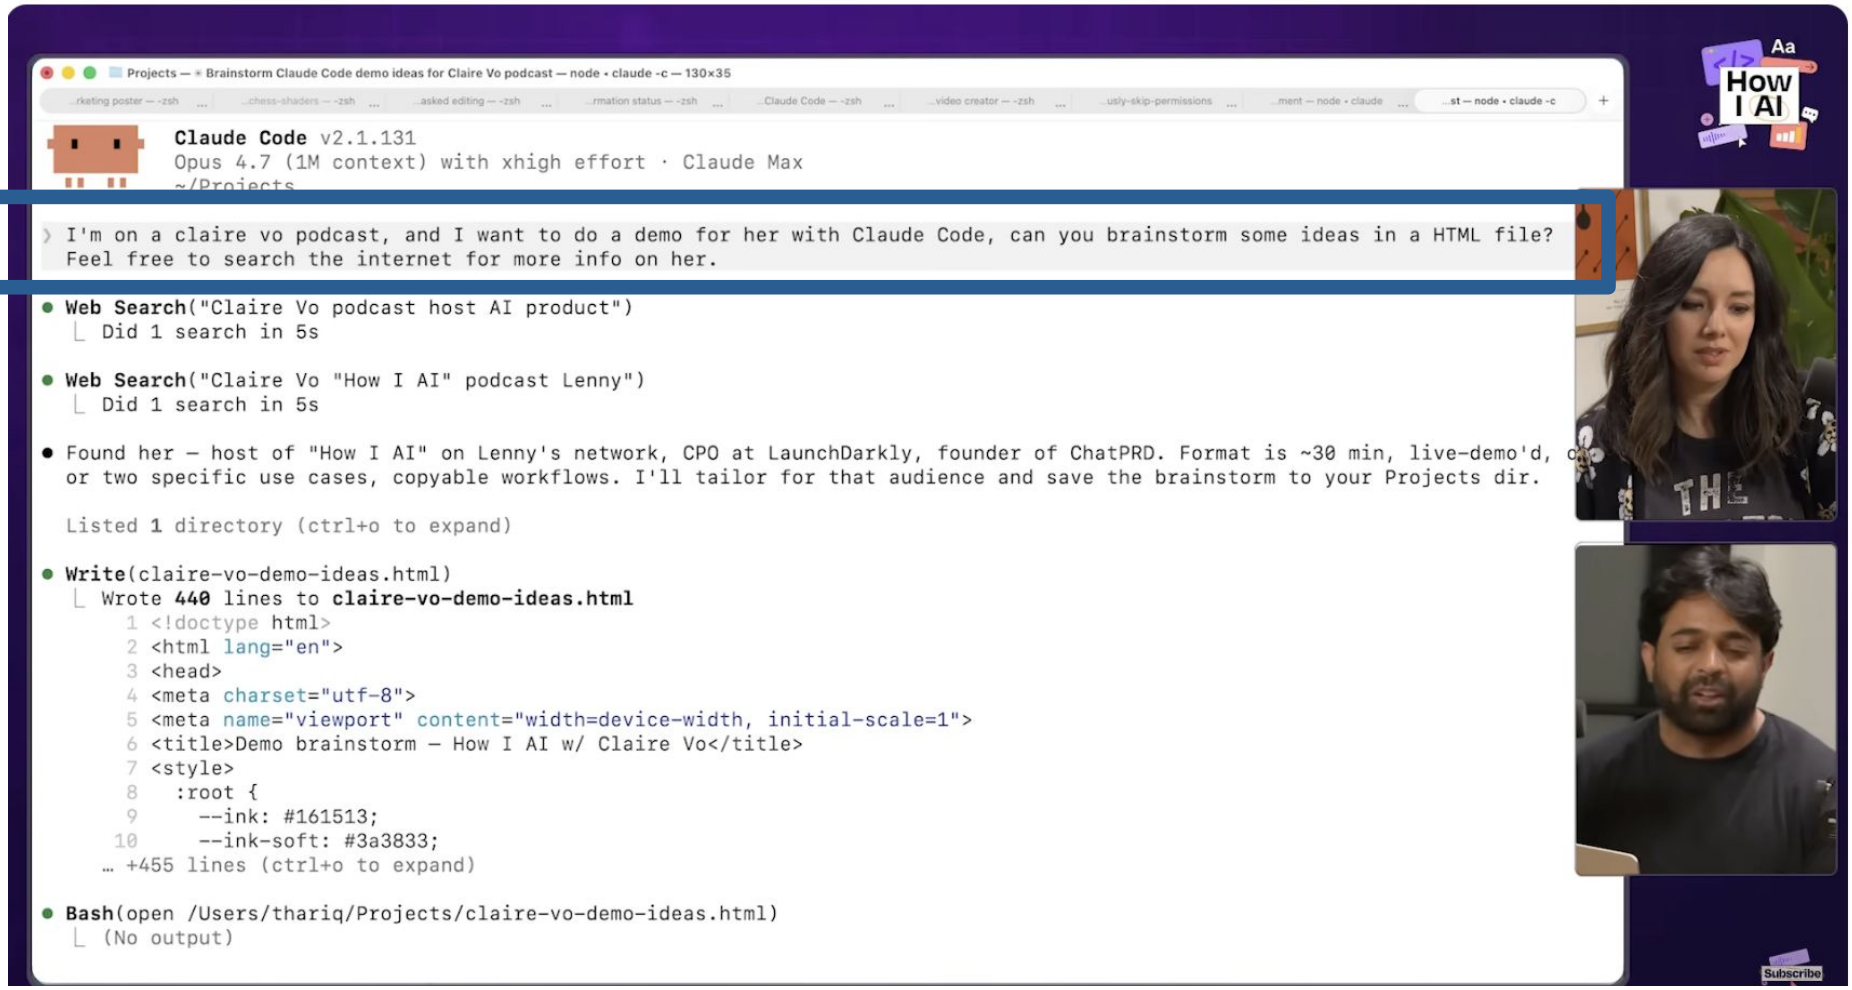

Grace Clarke 4:29 AM

Morning, team - thoughts below. If you disagree with any, let's discuss.

1. Not enforcing - over and over and over again - this mindset shift in how we now work.
2. Stop rewarding knowing over learning.
3. "Process hangover and preciousness." Stop using AI as a faster way to get things done in the same way. Map out workflows, get out of the way.
4. You need to hold the team accountable and address low performers.
5. Your data is a mess → incorrect "team brain" → scaling a problem
6. You must start measuring. Time saved =/= ROI. what are you doing with that time?
7. Be honest: AI will affect jobs.
8. For my sake, stop saying, "AI is a lazy, smart intern you delegate to." No. "AI is a very capable colleague on its first day you collaborate with." This is a problem youre seeing the team abandon attempts of complex work when it doesn't "come out right" the first time.

1. Push past the “human” hangover once
2. Prompting is a conversation. Just kick it off.
3. Efficiency is the floor, not the goal. Loops >>>>
4. Context ←→ Context + collaboration = <3
5. Empathy for a non-human mind

PROMPTING CAN BE VAGUE, LIKE THIS ANTHROPIC ENGINEER

PROMPTING: THE EASIEST WAY IS JUST A SCREENSHOT

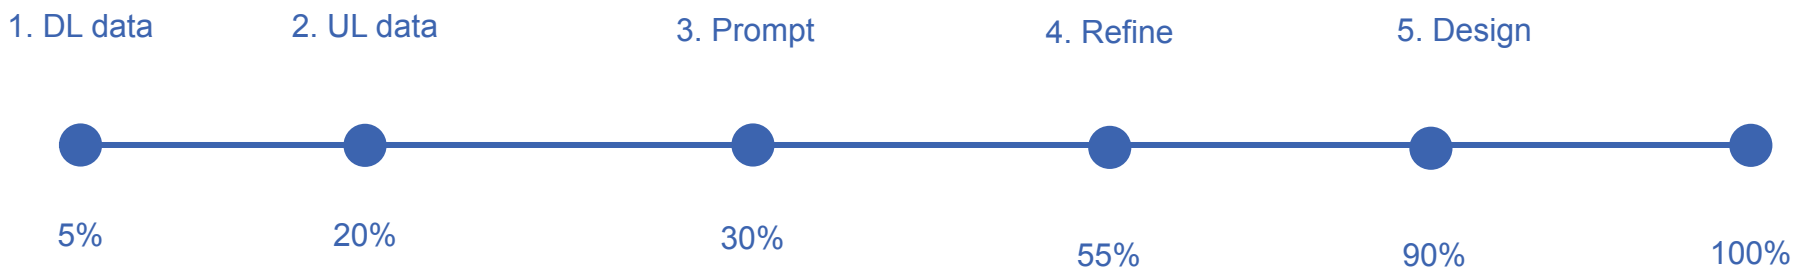

11 TABS + 2 HOURS → 1 TAB, 30 MINUTES TO ACTUALLY DRIVE THE BUSINESS AND FEEL GOOD

5 HOURS PULLING 17 TABS BY HAND. → 1 HOUR ENTERING INTO A SPREADSHEET. → PRINTING IT OUT - 10, 15, 20 PAGES.

2 HOURS ANALYZING. → 1 HOUR ON “SO WHAT?” → 1 HOUR FORMATTING.

THE PROCESS WE'LL FOLLOW

LET'S GO →

What's happening: CMO wants daily insights.

Problem: They don't even read it. Data is across 11 tabs, it takes ~2 hours. And reports =/= impact. You look ineffective.

Solution: Approach it as insights + action. Brief your AI once. Show up to work and have it made.

OUR PROCESS - WE'RE AT STEP 1

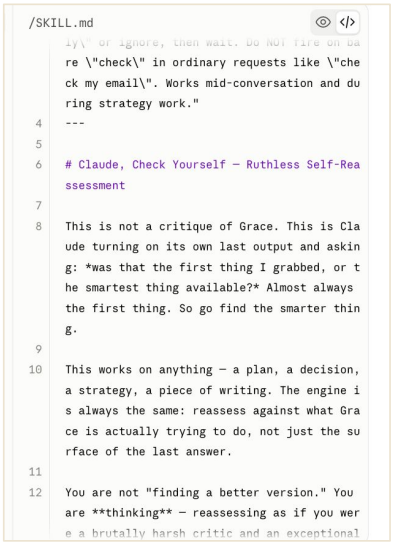

1. Download our prep packet
2. Upload the right prepped data
3. ~~Prompt~~ kick off the creation
4. Refine the report contents

Business overview
- Brand: Saltwell. Mineral sunscreen and skincare, founded 2021, based in San Diego.
- Customer: women 28 to 45 who want clean, mineral sun protection they'll wear every day.
- Channels: saltwell.com (52% of revenue), Amazon (31%), Target wholesale (17%).
- Team: 14 people. Marketing is 4 people plus an agency for paid social.
- Revenue: $14.2M in 2025. On track for $15.1M in 2026 as of June.

Products
| Product | Price | Share of 2025 revenue |
|---|---|---|
| Daily Mineral SPF 40 | $34 | 46% |
| Tinted Glow SPF 30 | $38 | 18% |
| Body Mist SPF 50 | $28 | 22% |
| Barrier Night Cream | $46 | 14% |

Changes this quarter
- Week of August 31: Daily Mineral SPF 40 moved from a squeeze tube to a new airless pump bottle. The pump was meant to look more premium and cut waste.
- Week of September 14: Tinted Glow SPF 30 went out of stock on saltwell.com for two weeks. Amazon stock held.

Business goals for Q4 2026
1. Hit $3.6M in Q4 revenue, up 8% from Q4 2025.
2. Keep return rate under 3%.
3. Grow repeat purchase rate from 34% to 38%.
4. Bring paid social return on ad spend (ROAS) back above 3.0.

Sales performance
Units sold per week, all channels combined.

| Week of | SPF 40 | Tinted Glow | Body Mist | Night Cream |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| July 20 | 2,380 | 820 | 1,450 | 610 |

How Cloud Blush is described today
This copy is on vespra.com, Sephora, and Amazon. It hasn't changed since launch in 2022.

> Cloud Blush. A dewy, glowy cream blush that melts into skin for a fresh, lit-from-within flush. Buildable color with a radiant, dewy finish that lasts all day.

The current ad campaign, "Get Your Dew," uses the same words.

Social listening and reviews

Product reviews: Daily Mineral SPF 40, after August 31
1. ★☆☆☆☆ "New pump leaks in my bag. Lost half the bottle in a week."
2. ★★☆☆☆ "Formula is the same, but the pump clogs and I can't get the last third out."
3. ★☆☆☆☆ "Paid $34 for a bottle I can't use. Going back to Halo, they have refills now."
4. ★★☆☆☆ "Why change the tube? The tube was perfect."
5. ★☆☆☆☆ "Pump stopped working on day three."
6. ★★★☆☆ "Love the sunscreen, hate the bottle."
7. ★☆☆☆☆ "Returned it. Customer service was nice, at least."
8. ★★☆☆☆ "Pump gives a huge glob, then nothing."

Product reviews: Daily Mineral SPF 40, before August 31
1. ★★★★★ "My holy grail. No white cast, no breakouts."
2. ★★★★★ "Tube fits in every bag I own."
3. ★★★★☆ "Great formula, wish it came in a bigger size."
4. ★★★★★ "Third tube. Not switching."

Product reviews: Tinted Glow SPF 30
1. ★★★★★ "Finally a mineral SPF that matches my skin. No gray cast on deeper skin."
2. ★★★★★ "Replaced my foundation with this."
3. ★★★★☆ "Love it. Was sold out on the website so I bought on Amazon."
4. ★★★★★ "Saw it on TikTok, believe the hype."
5. ★★★★☆ "Wish there were more shades. The deepest is close but not perfect for me."
6. ★★★★★ "Bought three. Scared it'll sell out again."

Customer support tickets, September
- 412 tickets about the SPF 40 pump: leaking, clogging, or not dispensing.
- 96 tickets asking when Tinted Glow would be back in stock.
- 38 tickets asking if Saltwell offers refills.

Social listening, TikTok and Instagram
- September 9: creator @glowwithnia (1.2M followers) posted "The only mineral SPF that works on my deep skin" featuring Tinted Glow. 2.4M views. Not paid. Saltwell never reposted it or reached out.
- Mentions of "Saltwell pump" were 82% negative in September.
- Mentions of "Saltwell tinted" were 91% positive in September and up 6x from August.
- Comments asking for "more shades" appeared on 30% of Tinted Glow posts.

Market signals
- Search interest in "tinted mineral sunscreen" rose 60% from July to October.
- Search interest in "refillable sunscreen" rose 35% in the same period, mostly after Halo & Co's launch.
- Search interest in plain "sunscreen" dropped 22% from July to October. This is

BREAKING DOWN THE ARTIFACT AKA VISUAL REPORT

Artifact (report): prompts, content, and aesthetics

Paste the prompts in order. After each one, read what Claude gives you and push back before moving on. Your job is to shape the insights, not accept the first answer.

Prompt 1: Find the insights
> I lead marketing at Vespra. I've attached our brief, business overview, company data, and market data. Read all of it.
> Tell me the 4 most important things happening with our brand right now. For each one, connect at least two sources and show me the evidence. Rank them by how much they matter to the business, most important first.
> Then give me one recommendation for our CMO: what to do, because of what evidence, and our hypothesis for what will happen.
> Use only this data. If something isn't in the data, say so.

Why it works: Claude gets a role, all the context, a clear output, and a rule for ranking. Asking for two sources per insight stops one-off guesses.

Push back before moving on
Try one or two of these:
- "Which of these is the most surprising? Why?"
- "What's the strongest evidence against your recommendation?"
- "Is any of this a red herring?"
- "Make the recommendation something we could test in two weeks."

Prompt 2: Build the Crystal Ball
> Turn this into an interactive artifact called the Vespra Crystal Ball. Follow the Crystal Ball direction in my packet. Every claim should link to the evidence behind it.
> Design it for a busy CMO who will give it 60 seconds. Make it beautiful, easy to scan, and fitting for a beauty brand. Use the [Midnight / Editorial / Brand] look from the direction.

Prompt 3: Art direct it
> Make the exec recommendation the first thing anyone sees. Add a confidence label to each insight: high, medium, or low, based on how many sources support it. [Then your own notes: bigger, calmer, more color, fewer words, whatever you'd tell a designer.]

Change one thing at a time, like you'd give notes to a designer.

Prompt 4 (optional, needs web search): Take it live
> Search the web for this week's news on blush trends and the "blur" finish. Add anything new to the Market Wire and tell me if it changes our recommendation.

Make it yours later
Swap in your own brand overview, sales data, reviews, social listening, and competitors.
Keep the prompts and the structure.

PLAIN TEXT

Subject: The Vespra Crystal Ball, Thursday, October 15, 2026

THE RECOMMENDATION

Rewrite Cloud Blush around "soft-focus," lead with Fig, and test it before Lark owns the word "blur."

Do this: A/B test the Cloud Blush product page. Test "dewy glow" (current) against "soft-focus flush" (new), with Fig as the default shade.

Because: Customers still love the formula, but the words they use for it changed. "Blurring blush" search is up 2.5x since July, and "dewy blush" is down by a third. Product page visits are up 58%, but conversion fell from 3.8% to 3.1%. Lark just started claiming "blur."

Hypothesis: The product already delivers what people want. The description is out of date. New words lift conversion with no formula change.

Next step: A two-week product page test, plus three creator briefs built around Fig and "soft-focus."

What we'd need: Brand sign-off on new copy, product page access, a Fig restock plan, and a small creator budget.

4 MOST IMPORTANT BRAND INSIGHTS TODAY

1. "Dewy" is cooling. "Soft blur" is taking its place.
Reviews asking for a blur finish went from 0% in July to 35% in October. The top return reason is now "Finish not as expected."
What this means for Vespra: The formula isn't the problem. The words are.

2. Fig is carrying the whole line.
Fig went from 24% to 44% of units after @noorbeauty's August 29 video. It sold out twice, and "vespra fig" search is up 5x.
What this means for Vespra: Make Fig the default shade and the face of the page.

3. Lark is claiming "blur" first.
Lark launched Blur Balm on September 22 with a "Blur Era" campaign and filed a trademark on October 8. 14 brands have blur products planned for spring.
What this means for Vespra: We have weeks, not months, to own "soft-focus."

4. Cloud Blush is the one that works on dry and mature skin.
"Doesn't settle into lines" shows up in 35% of October reviews. Lark reviewers over 40 say it "clings to dry patches."
What this means for Vespra: That's an edge Lark can't claim. Put it in the new copy.

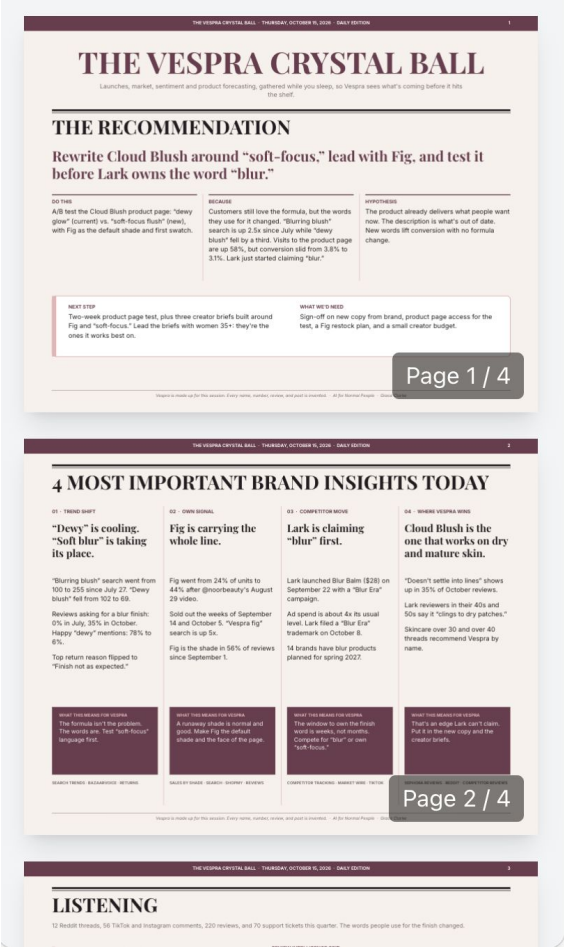

LISTENING

"I'm 48 and I'm their best customer." (Reddit)
"@vespra make this in a blur finish please" (TikTok)
"Dewy isn't dead, it's just aging up." (Reddit, Skincare over 40)

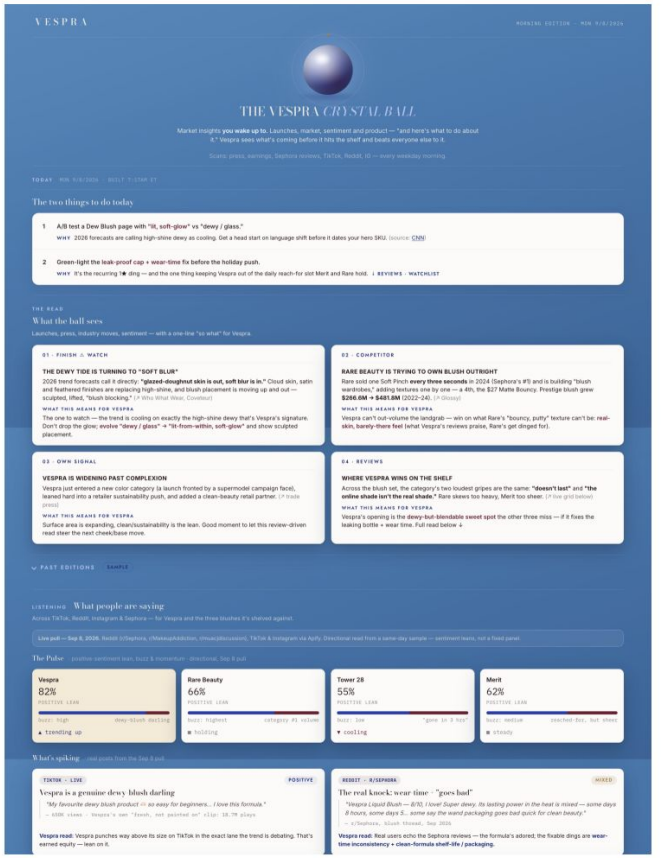

MARKET WIRE

October 2: 14 brands have blur products planned for spring 2027.
October 6: Oriel cuts prices on its dewy Glass Cheek by 20%.
